To whom it may concern:

I'm writing this letter of recommendation for Alejandro Giraldo. Alejandro has assisted learners in the Dataquest Community as a Community Moderator from March 2022 to the present. In this volunteering position, he demonstrated excellent soft skills and consistency in helping students on their way to learning data science. In particular, his contributions to the Community included:

- Solving 36+ technical data-related questions of learners, always giving informative, to-the-point, clear, and exhaustive explanations of complex concepts using simple language and following up on those questions
- Reviewing 8 guided projects shared by learners and giving them constructive and actionable feedback
- Sharing helpful guidelines and encouraging learners to follow them
- Sharing useful additional resources and documentation and giving illustrative examples
- Providing encouragement, motivation, and productive engagement on the posts shared by other learners
- Keeping a positive and friendly atmosphere in the Community

Alejandro has not only used our training platform to expand his data skills but has further demonstrated his expertise by answering data-related questions from others in our Community. Based on this, I would recommend Alejandro for a position in data.

Sincerely,

Elena Kosourova, Community Manager
